Introduction

SEAK has had the pleasure of introducing thousands of physicians to the numerous non-clinical career options available through our annual Non-Clinical Careers for Physicians Conference. We have learned that physicians have a desire to explore their options for a number of reasons, including:

- Having a more predictable schedule with no call, nights, or weekends;
- Being able to spend more time with their family;
- Burnout;
- Frustration with EHRs, authorizations, reimbursements, and the state of medical practice in general;
- A sense of boredom after doing the same thing for many years;
- A physical disability that prevents them from safely practicing medicine;
- Not making enough money in clinical medicine;
- Just not enjoying the practice of medicine; and
- Being ready to retire from medicine, but having a desire to keep working in a role other than a clinician.

There are a wide range of fields that traditionally employ non-clinical physicians. What we tell physicians attending our conference is the following:

“When you arrive, you may be thinking that your biggest challenge is finding something you might be qualified for. When you leave, you will realize that the biggest challenge you have is that you have identified numerous potential non-clinical careers and your biggest challenge will be deciding which one(s) to focus on.”

To give you a sense of the tremendous breath of opportunities out there for physicians, below are just some of the “traditional” non-clinical areas we have covered in our conference – each one presented by a physician who has successfully transitioned to the field either full time or part time. Many of these fields post jobs on the links provided in this document.

Don't restrict yourself to the "traditional" non-clinical fields listed in this paper

In working with physicians, we are amazed by the diverse talent we routinely come across. If you have passions and talent completely outside of clinical medicine, don't be afraid to set your own path that leverages these skills. There are numerous examples of physicians who have been wildly successful in careers that really have little, if anything, to do with medicine such as Jerry Punch, MD (ESPN sportscaster), the late Charles Krauthammer (Fox news commentator and syndicated columnist), Dr. Bon Arnot, reporter of CBS News, Ken Jeong (physician actor) and numerous medical doctors who got into politics. Don't be afraid to follow your non-traditional dream!

We very much hope you find the following list of job links to be a helpful resource.

---ABOUT SEAK, INC.---

SEAK was founded in 1980 and is an ACCME accredited Continuing Education Company. SEAK is proud to support the financial success and quality of life of physicians. Our focus is on teaching physicians how to supplement their clinical income through lucrative home-based work (consulting, writing, expert witnessing, file reviews, inventing, IMEs, and life care planning), educating physicians about the numerous non-clinical career options available to them, helping physicians become better negotiators, and assisting physicians who have been sued for malpractice to prepare for their deposition and trial.

---ABOUT SEAK, INC.---

SEAK was founded in 1980 and is an ACCME accredited Continuing Education Company. SEAK is proud to support the financial success and quality of life of physicians. Our focus is on teaching physicians how to supplement their clinical income through lucrative home-based work (consulting, writing, expert witnessing, file reviews, inventing, IMEs, and life care planning), educating physicians about the numerous non-clinical career options available to them, helping physicians become better negotiators, and assisting physicians who have been sued for malpractice to prepare for their deposition and trial.

Please feel free to contact us at: 508-457-1111; mail@seak.com;
